

AUTHORS' PROFILE

Otto Gusti Nd. Madung is the Rector of the Institute of Philosophy and Creative Technology (IFTK) Ledalero (2018-present). He has been teaching philosophy at the institute since 2009. In 1991 he started studying philosophy at Ledalero School of Philosophy (STFK Ledalero) and from 1994 to 1999 he continued to study theology at “Philosophisch-Theologische Hochschule St. Gabriel, Mödling bei Wien, Austria, where he obtained a master’s degree in theology in 1999. From 2001 to 2008 he did his doctorate at the Institute of Philosophy, Munich, Germany with a PhD thesis titled Politik und Gewalt. Giorgio Agamben und Jürgen Habermas im Vergleich (Politics and Violence. A Comparative Study of Jürgen Habermas and Giorgio Agamben). His research interests concern the fields of political philosophy, human rights, religion and gender studies. His articles were published in such journals as International Journal of South East Asian Human Rights, Millah: Journal of Religious Studies, International Journal of Indonesian Philosophy and Theology, Diskursus, Jurnal Ledalero and Jurnal Filsafat UGM. Additionally, he has been closely associated with a local NGO in Maumere called Truk-F (Women Division) – run by the local catholic nuns of the Holy Spirit Sisters- advocating for the rights of women and children.

Adrianus Yohanes Mai is a staff member of Institute for Research and Community Services at Institute of Philosophy and Creative Technology (IFTK) Ledalero. He holds three bachelor degrees which are philosophy, theology and ministry. In 2012 he started studying philosophy at Ledalero School of Philosophy (STFK Ledalero) and completed it in 2016. At the same year, he continued his study in theology and Ministry at University of Divinity-Melbourne Australia and was graduated in 2020. His research focuses on interreligious dialogue, culture, human rights and political studies. His articles were published in such journals as International Journal of Innovative Research and Development, Politika: Jurnal Ilmu Politik and Jurnal Ilmiah Kajian Multidisipliner. Currently, he has been officially accepted as a postgraduate student at Gadjah Mada University with major in philosophy study.

Winibaldus Stefanus Mere is a Professor at the Law School and Director of the Institute for Social Ethics at Nanzan University, Nagoya, Japan. He holds a BA in Philosophy and Theology from STFK Ledalero, Maumere, Indonesia; an MA in International Law from SOAS Law School, University of London, UK; an LLM in International Law with International Relations from Kent Law School, University of Kent, Canterbury, UK; and a PhD in Law from SOAS Law School, University of London, UK. His research focuses on business and human rights, particularly the legal, social, and religious (theological and spiritual) responsibilities of business concerning human rights. In recent years, his research interests have expanded to cover human rights issues from an interdisciplinary perspective, with a specific focus on contemporary challenges related to Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), Artificial Intelligence (AI), and minority issues.

Zuraidah Mohd Amin is currently an independent researcher upon completing a master’s degree in Southeast Asian Studies at the University of Malaya back in 2020. She obtained her bachelor’s degree from the Northern University of Malaysia in International Affairs Management (Hons) with a minor in Law and Diplomacy. She is one of the alumni of doctoral intensive training from Urban Theories Across Borders (UTAB) 2022 under the international research network, France’s National Centre for Scientific Research (CNRS). She is also featured at various international conferences including the National University of Singapore, Monash University Australia, Universitas Gadjah Mada Indonesia, and many more. She is also contributing one of the book chapters ‘Policy Manual on Law, Policy and Sustainable Development’ under Central West Publishing, Australia. Her research focuses related to development studies including migration, education development, urban development, and socio-economic development in the Southeast Asia region.

Gilang Mahadika was born on May 1, 1997. He is a social researcher holding a master’s degree in Anthropology from the Department of Anthropology, Universitas Gadjah Mada (UGM). His research interests revolve around political ecology and development studies. He is affiliated with the Center for Culture and Frontier Studies (CCFS), Universitas Brawijaya (UB) as a research assistant. He won the master’s dissertation prize by Association of Southeast Asian Studies (ASEAS), the United Kingdom in 2024 regarding his master research in Kalimantan on the indigenous smallholders and the practices of gardening in the Anthropocene. Now, he is currently a research fellow at the Department of History, UGM to carry out research on the environmental history in Yogyakarta.

Riki Ari Pradana was born on January 16, 2002. He graduated from Universitas Brawijaya (UB) holding a bachelor's degree in Anthropology. His research interests revolve around ecology, culture studies, and development studies. He won the first trophy in the Social Scientist and Humanities under the event of Indonesian research and innovation fair held by Badan Riset Inovasi Nasional (BRIN) in 2024. He is currently a social researcher and freelancer.

Mirea Artesani holds a Bachelor's degree in Social Sciences for Globalization from Università degli Studi di Mila-no and a Master's degree in Asian Studies from Lund University. For her master's thesis, she conducted field re-search on the political participation of Indigenous women in Chiang Khong, Thailand. This project gave her the opportunity to work closely with a local NGO committed to empowering women and amplifying their voices. Through this collaboration, she gained valuable firsthand insight into the challenges faced by marginalized women and the role of grassroots initiatives in fostering empowerment. This experience not only enriched her academic perspective but also strengthened her personal commitment to gender equality, women's rights, and broader social justice.

Nella Sumika Putri, born in Palembang on April 16, 1981, completed her undergraduate, master's, and doctoral studies at the Faculty of Law, Universitas Padjadjaran. She is a lecturer and researcher in the Criminal Law Department at the Faculty of Law, Universitas Padjadjaran, with a specialization in criminal law, international criminal law, comparative criminal law, human rights law, and criminal law clinics. Her current research focuses on the intersection of criminal law and human rights, particularly the 2023 Criminal Code (KUHP) and the right to freedom of religion or belief. She has served as a speaker and facilitator on matters related to criminal law and human rights, including participation in several human rights training programs such as the Training Workshop on Universal Periodic Review and the Training Workshop on United Nations Human Rights Mechanism in Geneva in 2021 and 2023. She currently holds the position of Secretary of the Indonesian Scholars Network on Freedom of Religion or Belief (ISFoRB) and is a Board Member of the Association of Criminal Law and Criminology Lecturers (ASPERHUPIKI).